

ITV's Sally Morgan, Star Psychic and Living a Psychic Sally. On the Read are such hits. Her stage show is a roller-coaster ride that mesmerises the audience for two hours.

At the show we started, Sally projected us messages from a young man who died in a road accident and said the name of his mum.

She also gave the names of a son and daughter who died tragically and comforted their mum by recounting details of their life that Sally couldn't and was handed a microphone. Let me say my grandfather, who passed away 17 years ago when I was eight," she said. Sally told Rachael he's with a lady called Anne.

That's my grandmother, who passed away in April, Rachael said. There are other spirits from Rachael's past.

Sally could also see someone brushing their hair. Rachael thought this might be a reference to her mother, Sue, who will her look during cancer treatment seven years ago.

Rachael was so overwhelmed by it all, she cried up until the interval, before taking her mum to France.

There was absolutely no way Sally could have known about any of this, Rachael insisted. She definitely has a special gift.

I used to be sceptical about psychics. But she told me things that have made me believe. And from next week, Sally will share her gift with you when she begins her journey in Star 11.

“ Sally has a gift. She told me things that have made me believe ” have known before the show. It was a night full of tears and laughter.

Special gift

In the audience, Rachael Bowden, 26, was desperately hoping for a sign from her late family members to check they're OK.

When Sally gave the name of a man called Lee, Rachael stood up

'SALLY FOUND MY DEAD DAD'S NECKLACE'

Kirsty Jones, 38, is a recycling assistant. She went to the show with her mum, Bett Hastie, 60, a nursery nurse. They both live in Stanford-le-Hope, Essex

“ My dad David's gold crucifix necklace went missing when he died of cancer eight years ago. I broke Mum's heart.

She'd bought it for his birthday when they'd first met. It meant the world to her. We turned the house upside down and never found it.

Sally tuned straight into Dad's spirit. She told us he was happy and pain-free in heaven. Then she looked at Mum and said: 'His necklace is in a box in the top drawer of your cabinet.'

Mum rushed home and opened the box - and there it was, right on top.

Spookily, we'd checked that box a thousand times before and never seen it. It was as if Dad had talked to Sally and then put his necklace right where we could find it. We are so stunned and happy.

'OUR ALAN IS AT PEACE'

Pauline Seymour, 54, is a publican. She went to see Sally on stage with her daughter, Amy Rose, 25, a jobseeker. They live in South London

Who knew Sally's power channels?

“ My son, Alan, 26, died tragically two years ago after a night out. Since then, Amy Rose and I have taken an interest in psychics. She suggested going to Sally's show to find out if Alan was at peace and I agreed.

When we arrived at the theatre, we left a message and a picture of Alan. Amy Rose was trying not to get her hopes up but as soon as Sally said she could see a young man swinging and mentioned some stairs, she jumped out of her seat - Alan was found hanging from a flight of stairs.

Sally said Alan loved us all so much. She also told Amy Rose that he'll be with her on her 26th birthday on 29 March. The two of them were always together on special occasions, so the message was very moving. Sally's given us real comfort.

HAPPY EVER AFTER

'SALLY'S MESSAGE WAS SUCH A COMFORT'

Linda Cox, 57, a teaching assistant, went with her son, Jamie, 33. They live in Carshalton, Surrey

“ I've always been curious about psychics. Jamie is very spiritual and probably has the gift but doesn't know how to channel it.

A couple of weeks ago, he missed that my dad, Ben, who died three years ago, wanted to talk to me. So we decided to go to the show with a picture of him and my mum, Rose, who died four years ago.

When Sally said Ben and Rose were with her, I was stunned.

Through her, my mum sent Jamie a message, reassuring him he would eventually find work. It was a great comfort as he's been unemployed for two years.

Jamie turned to me and said: 'There's on stage an address.'

Knowing my parents are with each other left me relaxed. Sally also mentioned Bella, my daughter Claire's dog, who went missing three years ago.

Who knows there's life after death?
